MRS. A. C. MARTIN, Editor.

PAW PAW, MICH., APRIL 18, 1892.

Congressman Burrows, who is attracting national attention of late by his masterly handling of critical situations, says, "Free wool is a wedge to free trade."

From the many conventions throughout Michigan that have lately endorsed Harrison, it does not look as though the "favorite son" racket of the Tribune had gained much of a following.

The precipitate haste with which Cleveland and Campbell refused to meet McKinley and Reed in joint debate of the tariff and silver questions, evidently acted as an eye-opener to Rhode Island voters.

A most significant conference was held at the White House last week be tween Harrison and the great Republican leaders each of whom has been prominently mentioned for the presidency. Senators Cullom and Allison, and Secretary Blaine were closeted with the President for some time and, when they parted, all seemed in the very best humor. Following so closely upon Senator Cullom's withdrawal of his name from the race, this interview indicates a clear understanding between away by the inspectors because of de these gentlemen, and the N. Y. Mail fects. and Express tells the story when it says, "New York is now solid in its support of President Harrison for renomination, and the silly stories sent out through the country about his withdrawal are the veriest rot."

Thirty-five Republican mayors against twenty-three elected by the Democrats within the bounds of the Wolverine state, is rather a discouraging count for the Bourbons, especially as the recent election ousts Democratic mayors in eleven or more of our leading cities, and it is no wonder that the Republican press throughout Michigan has been filled with paeans of triumph ever since April 4th. The Detroit Journal says, "Signs of Republican success this fall are as prominent as the signs of spring," and the Grand Rapids Herald is especially jubilant, though it is very funny to read in the Democrat that "there was considerable apathy among the voters of the city." No signs of said apathy are visible among the Republicans, however, and since little "Rhody" has expressed her intention to stand by honest money and the McKinley bill, there seems to be no doubt of a grand Republican victory next fail.

There is a growing feeling that something must be done regarding the race question, and that there was much propriety in the refusal of the colored people of Chicago to sing "America" because, as one man said, "I don't want to sing that song until this land is what it claims to be, 'Sweet Land of Liberty." On April 9th this feeling called together an enthusiastic meeting of colored voters at our State Capital, and the general sentiment crystallized into a set of resolutions to the national Congress in which warm thanks were extended to Albion W. Tourgee for his able championship of their cause, the race question being touched upon as follows:-

Resolved, That congress pass a national election bill or some other bill by which a citizen, both north and south, can have his political privileges. As it is now, there is a section of the United States where more than half its population is denied this constitutional right, resulting in, first, taxation without representation; second, denial of equal protection of the law; and, thirdly, caste legislation.

That these three charges are absolutely true, will be denied by no one conversant with the situation.
